Dear Chairman Pai:

As a result of President Trump's executive orders, 13771 and 13777, the Office of Advocacy (Advocacy) has begun an effort to hear first-hand from small businesses across the country about specific federal regulatory burdens facing their businesses. As you know, under the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA), agencies are required to consider the impact of their regulations on small entities when promulgating federal regulations.¹ We believe the RFA and consideration of small business economic impacts is a good place to start when an agency is selecting rules that are being reviewed for reform or elimination.

We recently hosted a roundtable in Overland Park, Kansas, and would like to inform you of the specific concerns and regulations that we heard about from small businesses in that region that are within your purview at the FCC.

Rural broadband deployment continues to be a priority for small businesses and two roundtable participants expressed concerns about barriers to rural deployment, including paperwork and reporting burdens that exhaust the resources of small businesses. Additionally, one participant expressed his support for expanded use of TV white spaces to accelerate rural broadband deployment. Advocacy commends the FCC for making rural broadband deployment a priority under your leadership, and I am aware that the FCC has a number of proceedings underway that seek to reduce barriers for small businesses and accelerate broadband deployment.

¹ Advocacy was established pursuant to Pub. L. 94-305 to represent the views of small entities before federal agencies and Congress. Advocacy is an independent office within the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA), so the views expressed by Advocacy do not necessarily reflect the views of the SBA or the Administration. The RFA, as amended by the Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act (SBREFA), gives small entities a voice in the rulemaking process. For all rules that are expected to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities, federal agencies are required by the RFA to assess the impact of the proposed rule on small business and to consider less burdensome alternatives. 5 U.S.C. § 601 et seq.

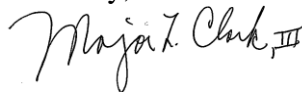

The Small Business Jobs Act of 2010 requires agencies to give every appropriate consideration to comments provided by Advocacy. The agency must include, in any explanation or discussion accompanying the final rule's publication in the Federal Register, the agency's response to written comments submitted by Advocacy on the proposed rule, unless the agency certifies that the public interest is not served by doing so. Small Business Jobs Act of 2010 (PL 111-240) § 1601.

The Office of Advocacy looks forward to working with your agency to reduce the burden of federal regulations on behalf of the small businesses that have asked us to be their voice in this regulatory reform process. Advocacy would be happy to meet with you or your representative so that we may discuss the concerns raised by roundtable participants. I have provided the contact information for Assistant Chief Counsel Jamie Belcore Saloom below.

As we continue to hear from small businesses across the country at our regional regulatory reform roundtables or through our outreach from our regulatory reform website, we will update you with additional summaries from those locations.

Thank you for considering small business impacts as a vital part of your regulatory reform efforts and for including the Office of Advocacy as an important part of the process.

Sincerely,
