Comments:

The Social Security Administration's (SSA's) overall score of "A" for the second consecutive year reflects its commitment to advancing the interests of the small business programs, as well as the hard work and dedication of its procurement professionals, who well understand and appreciate the significance of these programs to the economic well-being of our Nation. Our agency has continued to emphasize the importance of all the small business goals through a variety of means, including: conducting outreach and educational events targeted toward small business; sponsoring an annual small business conference that will provide helpful information to small businesses on the best methods to identify potential acquisition opportunities; regularly tracking the agency's progress in meeting its socio-economic goals so that management can ensure that maximum effort is being made by staff to achieve/exceed agency goals; and periodically issuing guidance to acquisition staff on issues, policies, and procedures that impact acquisition opportunities for small businesses.

With these substantial efforts in place, we have every confidence that SSA's small business utilization will continue to excel.
