JOINT SBA/STAPLES NEWSLETTER FOR NOVEMBER FOCUSES ON GETTING FEDERAL CONTRACTS

WASHINGTON – Small business owners looking for the latest information on how to find and land federal contracts should take a look at the November issue of the small business e-mail newsletter SBA Solutions, a collaboration between the U.S. Small Business Administration and Staples, Inc.

SBA Solutions, a free, interactive newsletter, made its debut in September. This new tool is specifically designed to provide information useful to potential and established entrepreneurs, all in line with SBA's new focus on innovation, simplification, and dedication.

SBA Solutions provides an informative training tool to the small business community, and features an easy-to-navigate format and comprehensive sections introducing small business owners to important issues related to their companies. The sections include What's New @SBA, Contracting through the HUBZone program, SBA Classroom, FAQs, and links to articles designed to help small businesses succeed.

"At the SBA, we are dedicated to providing entrepreneurs what they need to succeed, and we are excited to cosponsor this newsletter with Staples," said SBA Administrator Hector V. Barreto. "SBA Solutions is the gateway to a wealth of resources on important subjects for every small business owner."

The newsletter features:

- articles on various topics that are relevant to small business;
- success stories;
- an SBA program highlight; and
- a message from Administrator Barreto.

For a free subscription to the SBA Solutions newsletter, go online at <http://web.sba.gov/list/>.
